PAIRING WINE WITH THAI CUISINE

Riesling (served well chilled) with its racy, powerful backbone of naturally high acidity, lemon and lime core is the perfect all-rounder for Thai food. It is predominantly good with salad, picking up on the principal ingredients such as red shallots, mint, coriander, lime juice and lemongrass.

For more robust pairing for meats dishes of pork, lamb or beef, a lighter style of Shiraz from the northern Rhone region of France, New Zealand or cooler parts of Australia work well with their crunchy sweet and sour dark berry fruits and spicy, white pepperiness.
