About Zanzibar

Unguja Island, popularly known as Zanzibar, is just off the coast of Tanzania and forms part of a larger group of islands called the Zanzibar archipelago, many of which are uninhabited. This exotic and mysterious island has enticed travellers and traders for many centuries. Being in the middle of the Indian Ocean, Zanzibar has influenced the trade routes of both traders and colonists. It became a power to be reckoned with in its early years, supplying the world with slaves, gold, ivory and silks. Trade with the east brought Islam to the islands, making it an important part of Zanzibari culture. Steeped in colonization history, from the Portuguese to the Omani Sultans to the British, today Zanzibar provides an idyllic escape from the pace of the modern world. The turquoise ocean provides the ultimate place to reflect and unwind. Set your watch back 20 years and experience a unique destination for those in pursuit of romance, adventure or simple relaxation.

The beach and the pool

The private beach fronting the retreat is an absolute heaven of stylish relaxation with the Mnemba Atoll within in grasp's reach! Jafferji Beach Retreat has undoubtedly got the best and longest strips of beach in Matemwe area. The Indian Ocean's turquoise waves tease away gently at guests' feet as a waiter serves cool refreshments and local fishing boats glide by. The white powdery coral beach invites and entices you to indulge in relaxing walks, swim in the azure waters, or perhaps go on a bike ride down to the local village. One can also try out dhow sailing from this is perfect postcard beach. The local fishermen prepare to go and bring fresh catch that our in house chef then uses for our drool worthy dishes. You can choose to laze around on the day beds and soak up the breathtaking atmosphere.

THE POOL

During low tide, our swimming pool will come to your rescue! You can chill by the pool or relax on beach listening to the sound of the sea rolling into the powder-like sand.
