Marsa Mares Bay (also known as Marsa Mubarak or Turtles Bay)
A worldwide celebrated place among snorkelers and divers.

The word 'Marsa' refers to bays where the reef breaks off allowing growing up a sandy beach. These bays are usually rich in seagrass areas providing excellent feeding ground for the unique sea creatures. Marsa Mares is famous for its rich underwater life, considered as one of the best places for snorkeling and diving on the entire world thanks to its clear water and year-round good weather conditions. The whole coast features first-class coral reefs, playful different type of reef fish. (Anemone fish 'Nemo', Parrotfish, Banner and Butterflyfish, Damselfish just to mention a few species) Blue Spotted rays, Eagle rays, moray eels and guitarfish are also common here but most important is the resident of rare marine mammal (dugong and huge sea turtles).

This rare marine mammal lives in warm coastal waters from western Pacific to East Africa. Being hunted for a long time for meat and oil, IUCN (International Union for Conservation of Nature) lists the species as vulnerable to extinction. It already disappeared from the Maldives and Mauritius. The endangered sea cow lives only in a few places in Egypt, usually in sheltered bays where they feed on seagrass. Marsa Mares is one of these sandy bays where you have a high chance to see a dugong in natural environment!

You have the chance to spot the dugongs and turtles is higher early in the morning or in the afternoon when the crowd leaves. Although it seems dugongs enjoy human's company and favorite activity is playing with the sea turtles, typically they leave the bay and search for quieter areas when it becomes too noisy during the day. Spotting the dugongs and sea turtles is easy if the water is calm and relatively flat. they need to come up for air so just watch the sea surface from the shore and you will spot their head if they are around.

Despite their massive body, (adult dugong size is typically between 551-1980 lbs. -250 and 900 kg- and around 9.8 ft – 3 m) and turtles are as big as humans. They are harmless peaceful creatures.

Please respect our marine life so it can be preserved for future generations! Help us to save nature by carefully reading our information boards located at the beach to learn how to treat marine life and please remember the following: -

- Dugongs are listed as vulnerable to extinction, so please feel yourself lucky if you see one.
- Please don't touch the underwater creatures and most important is the dugong.
- Leave enough room for them to come up to the surface for air.
- Leave escape route to the underwater creatures and never chase them.
- Stay away if the creatures are injured or sick.
- Taking selfies from a closer distance or feeding the underwater creatures are illegal.
- Never walk or stand on coral reefs, touch the corals, take anything from the sea and throw rubbish into the sea.
- Fishing is strictly forbidden.
- Report to the hotel if you see any violation and educate others.
- Any kind of violation is illegal, and its consequences are dire.

We wish you a fantastic experience in Marsa Mares Bay and a memorable holiday at Jaz Amara.
